Mrs. Ella Axson Wilson, wife of President Woodrow Wilson, died at the White House late Thursday afternoon of last week. She maintained a brave fight for life against the slow, deadly grip of Bright's disease and other complications of telling effect.

WORLD'S WORST PANIC
CAME UNDER ROOSEVELT

Crisis of 1907 "Most Disastrous and Acute in History of the Country," Said Nelson W. Aldrich in Senate.

Washington, D. C., August 10.—Republican politicians in Congress, aided by Theodore Roosevelt, are continuing their efforts to reap political advantage by plunging the business world into a panic. Comparison of the business and politics of 1907 under Roosevelt with the business and politics of 1914 under Wilson, therefore, becomes timely and pertinent.

In the present year, numerous and convincing evidences are at hand indicating that a period of unprecedented prosperity has begun. This is true notwithstanding the campaign to destroy confidence and paralyze business jointly waged for the last few months by the Republican partisans and their Wall Street allies.

There are many reasons for the encouraging outlook now. Not the least of them lies in the fact that the new currency law was put onto the statute books by the Wilson administration. This law was enacted within a year after President Wilson took office. After the panic of 1907, what was done to fortify against panics during the six years that the Republicans remained in power?

Scarcely a calamity speech is made in Congress which does not assert that Republican rule signifies prosperity and Democratic rule the reverse. They make loud ado in comparing 1914 with 1894. Not a word do they say, however, about 1907.

The foremost Republican authority upon matters financial in 1907 was the then Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island. Aldrich was high priest of Republican tariff and financial doctrine. Not only that, he was the leader of his party in Congress. On February 10, 1908, delivering a set speech in the Senate, Aldrich described the panic of 1907 as the most acute and disastrous in the history of the country. He said:

"The present financial crisis from which the country has just emerged, which culminated in a serious panic in October, was the most acute and disastrous in its immediate consequences of any that has occurred in the history of the country. Nothing but the heroic measures taken by the representatives of the great business and financial interests of the country, acting in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury, prevented a total collapse of private credit and a disastrous destruction of all values. It is impossible to conceive, much less to measure, the losses which would have resulted from such a calamity. The country was saved by the narrowest possible margin from an overwhelming catastrophe, whose blighting effect would have been felt in every household."

"A total collapse was avoided, but the shrinkage in values of securities and property and the losses from injury to business, resulting from and incidental to the crisis, amounted to thousands of millions of dollars."

Prior panics in the United States, he continued, had been panics in which serious distrust existed in the public mind as to the security of the whole or some portion of the country's currency.

"The panic of 1907," he went on, "was not, either in its inception or its progress, a currency panic, in the sense to which I have alluded. Our currency, in character was beyond question."

"Neither the strength of the monetary system nor the extraordinary efforts which were made to avoid the serious result prevented a general suspension of payments by national banks, with most desirable and far-reaching results. This suspension commenced in New York on October 26 and was followed promptly by a suspension of banks in Chicago and other localities. The issue of clearing house certificates followed in most of the principal cities."

"A complete disruption of exchanges between cities and communities, through the agency of the clearing house, was the result. It was impossible to estimate the losses which were inflicted by this suspension of payments by the banks and the resultant interruption of exchanges. There was financial embarrassment on every hand, and an impossibility of securing the proper funds to move crops or carry on the important business of the country. The suspension and discouragement of business operations threw thousands of men out of employment and reduced the wages of the employed."

Mark you, this occurred after ten continuous years of Republican rule, with a Republican President in the White House.

Senator Aldrich has painted the picture completely and accurately. A mass of corroborative testimony is available, however.

Leslie M. Shaw, former Governor of Iowa, who then had recently retired as Secretary of the Treasury, in a public speech declared that the panic of 1907 was "generally conceded to have been the worst that the world has witnessed."

In December, 1907, on December 16, to be exact, Senator Benjamin F. Tillman of South Carolina made a speech yet remembered by his colleagues who were in Congress seven years ago. Tillman drove to the point in his usual picturesque and direct fashion. He exhibited in the Senate sample of the "scrip" which passed for money in many parts of the United States during October and November, 1907. These sample of "scrip" were reproduced in the Congressional Record.

"Here is a fine looking specimen," Senator Tillman cried, exhibiting a Southern clearing house certificate to the Senate. "It looks like what you people call Confederate money, with which I was very familiar when I was a boy—a shin plaster—and yet it was issued by national banks."

Among the many such samples thus put in evidence by the Southern Carolina Senator was a little slip of paper typical of the kind of money current on the Pacific Coast that year. It was called "Lumber Money."

The lumber man that memorable fall did not get money for his product; not an "I. O. P."

HEALTH PAST FIFTY

Careful diet is of utmost importance to men and women past fifty years of age; it keeps up their strength, and the oil in Scott's Emulsion is a nourishing food, a curative medicine and a sustaining tonic to regulate the functions.

It contains the medicinal fats of pure cod liver oil and science proves that they furnish twice as much energy as other foods—then too, it creates pure blood, sharpens the appetite, relieves rheumatism, strengthens the body and alleviates the ailments due to declining years. Scott's is free from wines, alcohol or harmful drugs. Beware of substitutes.

panic were told in an editorial published in the Philadelphia North American (Ind), December 9, 1907: "Fear has subsided sufficiently to make 'straight talk' safe. For many weeks the newspapers of the country uniformly maintained an optimistic attitude and refrained from printing facts or comment likely to increase the prevailing commercial dread and thereby hurt the public."

"Prosperity was keeping currency in the sections where it was owned, and Wall Street wanted that money back again to gamble with. The money changers stood from under the stock market and let it crash upon the small fry."

"Eight months ago John D. Rockefeller started a cry of calamity. Others of the chief money changers took up the chorus. And for eight months the members of Wall Street prophesied disaster, preached panic and did their utmost to create calamity. It was not easy sailing for a time. The country was rich, busy and contented. The panic breeders were facing unprecedented conditions. Consumption was larger than production. There was neither dread nor discontent; no scarcity of anything except labor."

"The country refused to be frightened. Brute force must be used. The money changers then used their most murderous weapon. By their control of the currency they could lock up the money of the country and make it so scarce that business could be conducted by crippling industry and creating distrust they could cut down consumption, make goods cheap and cause the money glut they wanted. They used that weapon."

As late as December 14, 1907, a London cable to the Washington Post said:

"America's financial difficulties continue to be the dominant topic of the business world throughout Europe. A representative utterance is this in today's Economist:

"How and when the American coach will be pulled out of the mire in which it has been sticking for the last eight weeks, is a problem that becomes more pressing every day. The present situation is a peril to financial and commercial interests the world over."

The remedy needed was well understood even then. Legislation was demanded which would revise the currency system so as to take away Wall Street's control of the currency. The progressive Republicans and the Democrats fought hard for such legislation through the winter and spring of 1908. But the Cannon machine in the House and the Aldrich machine in the Senate stood in the way.

The sole result was the unwieldy and practically useless Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency act, which contemplated substituting emergency Treasury notes for the clearing house "scrip" issued in 1907. It did not in the least affect Wall Street control of the general currency supply of the country.

Though the Republicans remained in power for another six years after 1907, they did nothing of a constructive character to reform conditions which had caused the "most acute and disastrous panic in the history of the country." But, as is stated above, less than one year after President Wilson was inaugurated, the present Federal Reserve Act went onto the statute books.

To discredit the Underwood tariff act, to undermine public faith in the Wilson administration, the Wall Street interests attempted to cause a panic this year. The Republican partisans in Congress cooperated in every possible way. They failed, first, because the conditions were fundamentally sound; second, because the conditions, being sound, an artificial panic could not be created because the regional reserve act had robbed the New York money barons of their control over the currency system.

Until 1907, the panic of 1893-4, and the Cleveland bond issue of that period was a favorite Republican theme upon the stump. To meet conditions caused by the panic of 1907—that is, to obtain money to bolster up the New York banks—President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou authorized the sale of $50,000,000 Panama Canal bonds, and of $100,000,000 three per cent United States certificates of indebtedness. Their legal authority for the latter issue, of which $50,000,000 worth were sold, was doubtful.

"I recall with what wrath and horror," said Senator Tillman in the same speech quoted above, "our Republican brethren held up their hands and denounced the Democratic party for an increase of the public debt in time of peace by a Democratic President. Here we find in the year of grace 1907, that with no deficit in the Treasury, with ample funds to carry on legitimate business, with no demand for a loan to build the Panama Canal, with absolutely no need of money to meet current expenditures, bonds are issued."

"Are You Run Down?" Nervous, tired, have no self confidence, afraid something is going to happen without any reason for thinking so; don't sleep nights—Then Take REZISTOL! It will make you feel fine immediately. 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottle. July 31, 4t.

The commercial greatness of this country is so overpowering we can't even scare up a respectable bank panic.

HECKERMAN LETTER

War Affects United States as Well as Europe.

Washington, D. C., August 10.—How many of we American people are today thinking and reading of the war across the briny deep and I doubt if the people of any nation on earth regret the existence of war in Europe more than do those of the United States. We are bound to each of the countries by ties of friendship and to many of them by ties of blood. Yes, we are bound to each one by the strong bonds of government. Could our people have prevented the conflict I assure you that not a blow would have been struck. The war affects the United States as well as Europe and its results are felt by every other country, on every island and in every home and upon every ocean sea and lake of the world. We have had for the past two weeks, only the first intimation of the changes that have been brought upon us by this war by the collapse of the great financial systems both in this country as well as the countries which are today involved in war.

There is not a family in our land that has not felt it in sugar which last Friday advanced from 4.20 to 5.75 cents per pound. Already measures are rapidly progressing leading to the independence of our country so far as financial affairs and the ways of providing ocean transportation of the great cargoes of grain and provisions and being so badly needed by every country across the ocean and in two weeks we will recognize that these cargoes of food will be rapidly moving out of our ports. Our own financial system has and is proving itself a wonderfully responsive system to the country's needs while that of our foreign countries has proved a failure in more ways than one.

Europe today is calling upon us for wheat, corn, barley, rye, oats and hay as well as all the dairy products with which to feed her hungry and starving people, but every nation wants powder, shot and all the various kinds of explosives as well as clothing for its army and in fact supplies of every character. I recently noted a cablegram from Argentina stating that all merchandise usually imported from Europe by that country, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars annually, is now expected to be furnished by this country. Among the items mentioned is a million tons of coal. This means the sudden activity and development of great activity and I believe a corresponding prosperity in every coal field in our great country. Yes, as it is now, the coal districts will be called upon for double the output of their best records. Your readers will see that within the next month every indication of the greatest activity of all of our ports. Greater values than ever before will be realized and manufacturers and merchants will begin to enjoy years of demands on their stocks, their outputs and their facilities.

"Is true American tourists in Europe have been having trials and tribulations of all kinds, which we, as a people, all regret, yet their safety return to their native homes have all been arranged for and in a few short days all will be serene at their homes here in the United States. Some are asking daily how long this European war will last. It is a question that no one can answer. If the people of this country had the power to determine it, its cessation would be immediate and I doubt not if the masses of the people of the different nations now engaged in the strife could have their sentiments recorded it would be recorded that not another shot would be fired."

We have had very hot weather for some time, no rain in this section at all. The fruit, of which the crop is the largest ever about Winchester, is dropping from the trees owing to the drought. Cooper Brothers of Winchester expect ten thousand barrels of apples—quite a crop. I have an invitation to go with some friends to Colonial Beach for a week's outing. This is to be a family fishing party and I hope to have a nice time.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

Life After Life

By Joachim Miller
Could I but teach man to believe,
Could I but make small men to grow,
To break frail spider webs that weave
About their thews and bind them low.
Could I but sing one song and lay
Grim Doubt; I then could go my way
In tranquil silence, glad, serene,
And satisfied, from off the scene.
But, ah this disbelief, this Doubt,
This doubt of God, this doubt of good.

The damned spot will not out.
Wouldst learn to know one little flower,
Its perfume, perfect form and hue?
Yea, wouldst thou have one perfect hour

Of all the years that come to you?
Then grow as God hath planted, grow
A lovely oak or daisy low,
As he hath set his garden; be
Just what thou art, or grass or tree,
Thy treasures up in heaven laid
Await thy sure ascending soul,
Life after Life—be not afraid!

Hold your husband by holding your tongue.

If unwilling to do it yourself, ask the other fellow. His courage may be greater than yours.

It is definitely settled that men will not wear shadow trousers next season.

Wheat prices have not yet reached the "dollar a grain" point. But farmers have hopes.

When a young man gets fresh it is time to tickle him with a stove.

A Woman's Charm

Beautiful hair, fluffy, lustrous, abundant and free from dandruff, is one of woman's greatest charms—it's her main delight—yet many who would be most attractive but for their streaked, thin and lifeless hair, think there is no remedy and that pretty hair is a gift of nature. Beautiful hair is really a matter of care and attention. Parisian Sage, when rubbed into the scalp and applied to the hair, will work wonders—you will be surprised and delighted with the first application—not only will the hair appear abundant, soft, fluffy, radiant with life, but really doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage supplies hair and scalp needs. It surely removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of all dirt and excessive oil. It is an inexpensive, scientific tonic, and contains nothing to injure the hair or scalp. It can be secured from F. W. Jordan, Jr., or at any drug store.—Adv. Aug. 6, 2t.

The Wives of Public Men

It is the rule in public service, that the man wins the applause, but the wife often carries a burden the weight of which is unrecognized. The fact is suggested by the pathetic death of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, and the ill health encountered by Mrs. Taft in the White House. The position of "first lady in the land" is not the ornamental joy it seems to many aspiring women.

The experiences of a public man's wife must be a little like those of a soldier's wife. The latter does not have to meet the shock of battle nor suffer from the miasma of fevers. But she can imagine untold suffering in her quiet life at home.

Similarly it is probable that the wives of public men worry a good deal more about attacks on their husbands than do the men themselves, who are used to the rough and tumble of politics.

Modern social dress parade places a heavy strain on women in public life. It ought to be sufficient for them to supply a quiet and peaceful home life, where their husbands would find refreshment after the contentions and toil of the day.

The customs of political centers make the wives of public men social leaders. They must entertain dignitaries in an attractive fashion, must maintain an appearance of social ease and charm, remove friction, subject themselves to critical comment, meet the intrusions of ambitious persons, and live in a flutter and turmoil.

Mrs. Wilson, not satisfied with meeting all obvious duties, generously tried to uplift the slums of Washington. Her case is a conspicuous instance of the many women who attempt tasks beyond their power to fulfill. Life in the social lime light is one of strain. The greatest kindness the public can confer is to let the wives of public men enjoy a quiet family life so far as is possible.

Philadelphia Record

In every home, where keeping abreast of the world's progress day by day is regarded as an educational duty as well as a pleasure, the Sunday newspaper ought to be a welcome visitor. In discriminating homes, particularly where there are young people whose tastes and opinions are largely molded by what they read, as much care and judgment should be exercised in the selection of a Sunday newspaper as in the choice of books. We commend The Philadelphia Sunday Record to our readers as a paper that is as clean as it is conscientious in the presentation of the news; its appeal to every member of the family as it is vigorous, and as indispensable as it is interesting.

The characteristics that have popularized the daily issue of The Record are the back bone of the Sunday issue. Its new pages cling to Record standards of accuracy, consciousness and readability. The features that give the daily its place of pre-eminence in the household are enlarged and amplified on Sunday; the columns devoted to woman's interests, fashions, science and domestic arts grow into pages, and new departments, covering the best of current humor (in black and white and color) and fiction, are added. The illustrated Sunday Magazine alone, with its widely girded high-class stories and articles by leading writers, is worth more than the price of the paper.

The Sunday Record is a bigger and better daily Record, built up on the sanest and soundest lines of Sunday journalism, with the idea that the intelligent reader, having more leisure for literary entertainment on Sunday than any other day, looks to its quality as well as its quantity. When we say that daily Record quality is maintained in The Sunday Record, that is the highest praise we can give it.

Lincoln Highway Notes

The new Lincoln Highway Inn being completed at Coatesville, Pa., on the Lincoln Highway, will be a temperance hotel. No bar is being provided.

Fifty signs pointing out the way to Los Angeles from San Francisco have been placed for the guidance of tourists who come to San Francisco over the Lincoln Highway and wish to go south along the coast to Los Angeles.

With only four precincts to hear from, unofficial returns from Esmeralda County, Nevada, indicate that the $25,000 bond issue for good roads has been passed by a majority of 173 votes, only about 500 votes were cast. If the issue passes most of the money realized by the sale of these bonds will be spent on the Lincoln Highway.

The Good Roads Committee of the Salt Lake City Commercial Club met recently with the members of the State Highway Commission in an endeavor to have the commission improve the Lincoln Highway. The commissioners reported that there was $3,600 available for this work as soon as Toole County raised a like amount.

Dr. William A. Campbell of Colorado Springs, Colo., has just finished a tour from Detroit, Mich., to the Springs. He made the 2,000-mile trip in eleven days. Met at the Springs, Campbell followed the Lincoln Highway and attributes his quick time to the excellent condition of the Way. He says that one day he drove 240 miles on the Lincoln Highway.

Inyo Good Roads Club of California is advocating the improving of a branch road to join the Lincoln Highway at San Francisco, running along the coast of northern California to Salem, the capital of Oregon, and Olympia, the capital of Washington. The idea is strongly approved by the Lincoln Highway Association of California and is being championed by the Women's Tri-State Pacific Coast Good Roads Association.

Chairman Morris Says European War Helps Democrats

In a statement issued yesterday Chairman Roland S. Morris, of the Democratic party, said:

"I have been asked what effect I expect the European War situation to have upon the political campaign in Pennsylvania."

"The war has already had one clear effect. It has demonstrated the supreme wisdom of the policy of watchful waiting, followed by the Wilson administration in its relations with Mexico, and the supreme folly and wickedness of the war program demanded in that crisis by Boies Penrose and the other jingoes and reactionaries. If the Penrose policy had been followed by the President, we should have seen at this time both hemispheres being drained of their best blood, and of their treasure. Instead of only one. Watchful waiting is precisely what was needed to prevent the awful conflict now raging in Europe. In that connection the war has also given a splendid construction of the efficacy of the peace treaties proposed by Secretary Bryan. It is unthinkable that the nations of Europe would have gone to war deliberately on the slight provocation of the Serbian episode, if they had taken a year to think the matter over and to have the real facts and the rights of the parties investigated and published by impartial judges."

"The result of these incidents upon the political situation can hardly be overestimated. They have completely demolished the principal prop upon which the opposition had relied upon in its assault upon the Democratic party. Events have strengthened the party immensely in both its foreign and domestic policies. The candidates of the party in Pennsylvania, who have stood unwaveringly behind the President against all the noisy clamor of Penrose and the reactionaries, will have the deserved advantage of public confidence, now that their position has been vindicated. The only way for Pennsylvanians to show their faith in, and loyalty to, the President and his policy of internal and external peace is to support the Democratic ticket and substantial pluralities of the voters are determined to follow this course."

and sitting up with a corpse." (Laughter and applause.)

Mr. Speaker, things are all out of joint to the gentleman from Washington. He has become a chronic croaker, and if he keeps up this croaking, it is certain that the day is not far distant when Old Bill will be called on to sit up with his political corpse in the Seattle district in the State of Washington. (Laughter.)

Mr. Speaker, I saw the gentleman in this House when his party was in power in every branch of the Government. He had every opportunity possible then to vote for remedial measures, but, like his party, the gentleman has persistently and insistently voted to increase the power of a favored few and against measures in the interest of the masses. He has voted for measures that taxed necessities and placed luxuries on the free list. Like his party, he has been the friend of privilege, the exponent of class legislation, and the faithful friend of the trusts, and now he criticizes the fearless and faithful Democracy of this administration for striking from the limbs of labor, commerce and industry the shackles forged upon them by the Republican party. — Congressman Thomas J. Heflin of Alabama in a speech in the House.

BIG RAILROAD SHOPS WORK NIGHT AND DAY

Converting Stock Into Grain Cars—Railroads of the West Never so Prosperous and Busy.

Chicago, July 26.—Twenty thousand and six hundred and fifty large new grain cars have been built by seven railroads operating in Illinois for delivery early in August, to help handle the bumper crops, according to notification sent by companies to the State public utilities commission.

"These seven railroads," said Chairman James E. Quan, of the commission, "inform us that they will be able to handle adequately this year the largest crops ever known in the State. We have been working with the companies for months to insure a sufficient number of cars, and we have succeeded."

"A larger number of grain cars will be at the service of shippers during the season of 1914 than ever before. Besides the 20,650 new grain cars ordered by seven railroads, all the roads report that they are reconstructing stock cars and other cars to be in condition to handle grain. One single railroad is rebuilding 3,000 cars."

"More than 120 new locomotives will be delivered to several railroads within the next ten days. All the railroad shops are working night and day. All roads have recalled their grain cars from foreign lines to have them ready for Illinois business."

Stomach Troubles Quickly Cured

People go on suffering from little stomach troubles for years, and imagine they have a serious disease. They over-eat or over-drink and force on the stomach a lot of extra work, but they never think that the stomach needs extra help to do the extra work.

If these people would take Tonaline Tablets regularly they would be a great big help to the stomach in its strain of over-work. No matter what you eat or drink Tonaline tabs sweeten your stomach and stop gas belching in five minutes. The heaviness disappears, and the stomach is greatly aided in its work of digestion.

TONOLINE

Tablets not only promptly relieve all distress, but if taken regularly will absolutely cure indigestion by building up the flabby, overworked walls of the stomach and make them strong enough to digest the most hearty meal. $1 for a 50 days' treatment. Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A general European war would call about 34,000,000 men to the field of carnage. The same number in a wheat field would produce more satisfactory results.

A Modern Necessity

The value of advertising is felt at three ends—the merchant, the consumer, and the publisher.

Through the medium of his advertisements, the merchant acquaints the consumer with the wares he has for sale, with their values and their attractive features, and is himself constantly in touch with the consumer.

The consumer reads of the goods he wants, learns where to find them, and saves the time of fruitless hunting from place to place.

The publisher is the go-between, the medium of communication between the buyer and seller, a sort of public convenience. Strange as it may seem, he, too, has his uses.

Advertising accomplishes more good and better results for all people than any one feature in commercial life.

It is a modern necessity, made so by the constantly increasing demands of a discriminating public.

Imler

August 11.—Mrs. A. G. Stuft and two children and Mr. and Mrs. "Bird" Kauffman of Ridgely, Md., are visiting relatives here.

M. L. Imler and Edgar Grabbil are working on the State Road at Osterburg.

Quite a number of our people attended the picnic at Queen on Saturday.

Threshers are busy at present. Earl Imler of Altoona spent Sunday here with William H. Imler.

Big Evangelistic Campaign For Mount Union

Mount Union is preparing for a big evangelistic campaign under the well known evangelist Rev. Robert E. Johnson of Chicago, and party. Preparations are now being made for their coming, and the campaign will start on Friday, August 23rd, and will continue for four weeks. A tabernacle will be erected on August 20th which will seat 2,000 people and consume 50,000 feet of lumber. This will be put up probably in a day by several hundred volunteers, who will be fed on that occasion by the ladies' aid societies of the various churches of the town. The tabernacle will be 90 by 128 feet.

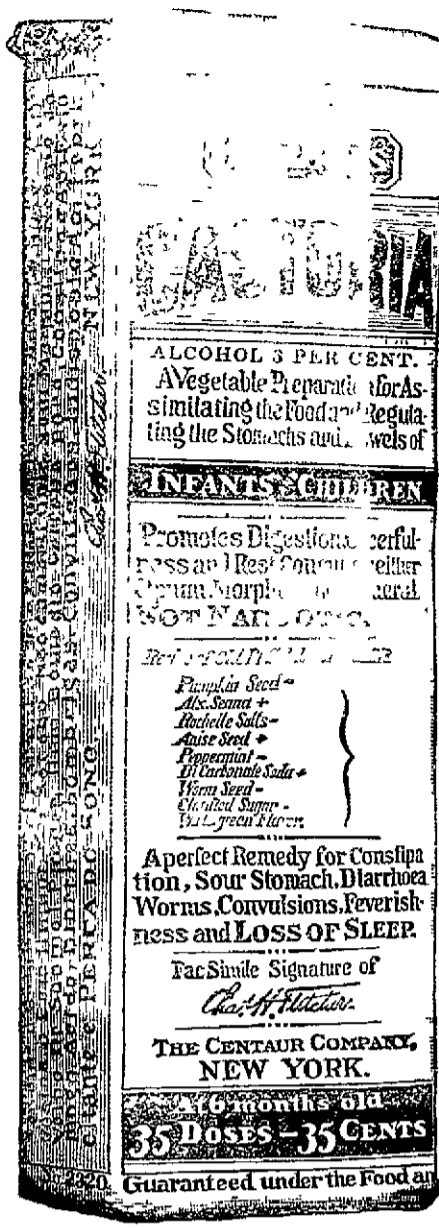

Mr. Johnson recently completed a campaign at Osceola Mills where he had 1,000 converts. He is assisted in his work by Prof. W. W. Weaver as musical director, than whom there are few better; by C. W. Mainwaring, pianist, who is in the front ranks in his line, by Mrs. Johnson, who is engaged principally in the women's and young people's work; by Miss Nora L. Killian, teacher of personal work classes. Effort is being made to have a chorus of 600 voices and an orchestra of 40 pieces to assist Mr. Weaver in his evangelism of song. Towns round-about are invited to join in the campaign. The officers of the local executive committee are: President, Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox, D. D., pastor of the Methodist Church; Vice President, Rev. Chester W. Todd, pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Secretary, Charles H. Welch, editor of the Mount Union Times; Treasurer, G. B. M. Kepler, Secretary and Treasurer of the Stahler Machine Co., of Mount Union.

If we can't pull off a war of our own we can at least indulge in the peaceful occupation of watchful watching.

All honor to President Wilson, whose sense of duty impels him to write an appeal for world peace while sitting at the bedside of his dying wife!

When the shadow of death enters a man's home the sympathy of the world goes out to him. The nation bows its head in the presence of the grief of its President.

Why shouldn't the European scrapers make strenuous efforts to retain the friendship of the United States? Some one must feed the starving millions when the war is over.

The International Harvester Company has been declared by the United States Courts as a combination in restraint of trade and as a violator of the Sherman Anti-trust law. It has been advised to dissolve in 90 days or a receiver will be appointed. The President of the Company, Mr. McCormick says the case will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The Government by resolutions in Congress is to investigate the advance in prices of food stuff and necessities of life, to see if there is a coalition between the manufacturer, wholesaler and producer to create high prices unnecessarily at a time when they can squeeze the American people. Representative Donahoe, Democrat, of Philadelphia presented the first resolution which asks for a commission to be appointed to take or collect testimony. All commodities seem to be soaring unreasonably in this season of plenty. Wheat has advanced, sugar climbed to almost double, rubber goods gone out of sight, meats rubbing the high-water mark all in two weeks. These high tariff advocates may think it is the time to make a fortune in a day, when the tension is on everything. In order to curb this the government assumes the duties of an agent to regulate the barter and trade of the country.

LET US HAVE PEACE

The greatest calamity in history is being enacted in Europe.

Five of the great nations of the world and several of the smaller ones are grappling in the grip of death. Fears are entertained lest even others be drawn into the furnace of war.

Death and destruction stalk abroad now, and famine and pestilence will follow.

Wars of the past will be as the games of children when compared with the present struggle.

Men will go down like blades of grass before the modern engines of destruction, and a once fair land will be people with widows and orphans and the maimed from the field of carnage.

It is terrible to contemplate! Some hand should stay the conflict, but whose hand will it be?

President Wilson, sitting by the bedside of his dying wife, was impelled by his sense of duty to pen a strong plea for peace. It was without effect.

But there is one power which can stop the war, if it so desires, and that is the money power.

If the great bankers of the world will unite and close their vaults to the kings and emperors whose personal jealousies have plunged their patriotic citizens into the deadliest strife of the age, this war will soon end.

Nations cannot fight and feed armies without money, and when money fades away rational sense returns.

The banks of the United States have wisely set the example. Their vaults have been closed.

If the money barons of Europe will follow their example we will have peace.

It is time for action.

AMERICAN SHIPPING

The restless, achieving American people cut the Panama continental backbone that defied every other race of workers. They light and protect rocky and sandy coasts with an efficiency elsewhere unknown. But in the operation of shipping they have made a failure. It is the one great world industry which they are content to leave to other peoples.

In time of peace, a profitable avenue for labor and capital is lost. In time of war, it may not be possible to get products transported to foreign shores, as the country is now realizing with consternation.

There has been a half century of controversy between different ideas. Shall the government pay subsidies, shall it remove the restrictions placed on foreign built ships, shall it place preferential duties on imports in foreign ships? It seems impossible to get a majority for any one plan.

For thirty years it was maintained, that if Americans could buy ships abroad, an enormous tonnage now owned by our business men, but sailed under foreign laws, would come under our flag. The law of 1912 permitted such registry, but no such ships have been transferred.

The heart of the problem is this, which must be admitted from all points of view: It costs more to operate under the American flag. A prominent ship owner, who has vessels under both registrations, says it costs him $133.15 per day for an American ship carrying 1,100,000 feet of lumber, and but $100.81 per day for a British ship carrying 3,200,000 feet of lumber.

A sailor's lot is called a dog's life. The American government has tried to ameliorate it by a code of protective laws. This makes the operation of ships cost more money. It is not likely that our people want any necessary protections removed. But a shipping code largely created as far back as 1792 must contain many burdensome restrictions, that could and should be removed by agreement of all interests.

WAR AND COMMERCE

The foreign trade and business relations of the United States would have been much less interrupted could Europe have adopted the American principle of exemption of private property from capture at sea in war.

At the Hague conference of 1907, the American delegation made a plea for such exemption from capture. This principle has always been advocated by our government. France, Great Britain, Russia, Japan, and other governments opposed it at the Hague, and it was beaten.

In more barbarous times, wives and children were captured and sold into slavery, cities were burned, and non-combatants put to the sword.

Gradually these wicked customs have been refined, as respects the lives and freedom of non-combatants, and as respects property on land. Even in a country so backward and reactionary as Mexico, non-combatants have been mostly safe, and destruction of private property has been at least the exception.

Yet in the matter of capture of private property at sea, the old, archaic principles of ancient warfare yet prevail in all their barbarism. The warriors may be too cultured to attack women and children. Yet they will capture the food supplies that will keep those women and children from starvation. They will seize the materials of manufacture that will permit a country to maintain its economic existence.

Nothing is gained by these survivals of savage practices. History shows few instances where nations have been overpowered by blows at economic prosperity. Besieged cities always eat horse flesh rather than submit. It is only by direct attack on fighting power that war can win. The subjection of the commerce of the world to the terror of naval attack is thus a mediaeval survival.

The United States has the glory of having led the fight against this barbarism.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT AND WAR

War has always been primarily an affair of kings and nobles. In the old feudal days, the lord gave his subjects certain protection, and in return exacted military service. The subject got security from universal lawlessness. He could well afford to take the chances of occasional scrapping in behalf of the ruling baron.

Autocratic monarchs guard jealously their ancient prestige. Their conception is not different from that prevailing centuries ago. It is the survival of this archaic feudal spirit that has brought on the tragic conflict in Europe.

In older history, kings and generals, their ambitions, passions, and rivalries, were the center of interest. The life, labor, suffering, taxation, and sorrow of the common people, who feed the maw of the cannon, was a minor matter.

Democratic government by no means provides escape from war. National hatred may be nursed at every hearthstone. Mothers may bring up their boys under oaths of racial vengeance. The moment some headstrong power casts the firebrand, every humble home leaps into fire.

But as a general thing, popular government reduces the chances of war. Where ministries and cabinets are subject to Congresses and parliaments, the lust of battle stands the scrutiny of common sense. If progress and national integrity are only possible at the cost of this final sacrifice, the common people will sanction and support a war.

But if the challenge is thrown down merely from regal arrogance, or for some worthless little strip of territory, the workers of the nation will ask why they should sacrifice their lives and their little savings for so trifling a cause. Autocratic governments that bring on needless wars are likely to find themselves buried under the rising tide of popular government.

THE PENNSYLVANIA BATTLEGROUND

The eyes of the nation are already fixed upon Pennsylvania as the crucial battleground of an epoch-making assault upon the last ramparts of special privileges in the fall of 1914.

There will be determined, in large degree, whether President Wilson's policy of freedom, fair play and fearless enforcement of the people's law, shall be sustained, or whether we shall return to the days of feudalism and strife from which we are emerging.

There will be determined whether honest fulfillment of party promises shall earn the respect and confidence of honest men, or whether party treachery and faithlessness shall win the rewards.

There will be determined whether decent politics, clean and equal elections, and upright, straightforward conduct in public offices count for more than the manipulators and manoeuvres of a corrupt machine, dominated and sustained by the worst elements of the community.

There will be determined whether the people genuinely desire to control their own party organization and to nominate and elect their own candidates, or whether they are still willing to submit to the dictation of co-terries and to endorse the whole underground system in all its ugliness.

There will be determined whether government is to serve the interests of the whole people, with equal rights to all and special favors to none, or whether it is to be the servant and ally of selfish interests.

There will be determined whether progress shall be made in solving the problems of modern life, whether justice shall be granted freely and without grudge to the weaker factors of society and industry, or whether American commonwealths shall cling to outgrown forms and methods that now serve as the bulwark of injustice and inequality.

There will be determined, above all whether the new day of freedom, equality, justice, progress and prosperity for the whole people shall dawn upon the citizens of the Keystone State of the Union, the cradle of liberty and independence, or whether Pennsylvania, with its noble traditions, its patriotic people, its enormous wealth and vast fields of industry, its matchless resources and glorious opportunities, shall become "an island in the sea of progress," the prey of political time-servers and privilege-hunters, the haven of political corruptionists and the private province of reactionary political barons.

Pennsylvania can and must choose. More clearly, perhaps, than in any other State of the Union, the time is drawn between honesty and treachery; between what has been and what is to be in America.

Boies Penrose, arch enemy of progress, is bearing the standard of the Old Guard. He typifies all that it stands for. In his temperament, personality, record and affiliations he is the personification of the Old Order. The vote he receives on November 3 will measure the influence of special privilege and corrupt politics among Pennsylvania electors.

Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, champion of progressive reforms, a Democrat by inheritance, training and conviction, is his principal opponent. The foe of privilege, the spokesman of progressive Democracy in the House at Washington, a self-made man, who has risen to prominence and power through life-long devotion to the highest ideals of private life and public service, he is the embodiment of every qualification for high office and of every need of Pennsylvania. He is allied with no special interests, serves no private cause, seeks no personal ends.

Between these two Pennsylvania will choose its representative in the United States Senate, for, however much one's respect for Gifford Pinchot, the candidate of the Progressive Party, it is but looking facts squarely in the face to recognize that his cause is hopeless from the beginning. The indications are clear that the time is drawing near, when the genuine Progressives of Pennsylvania will rally to the support of Congressman Palmer as the surest means of rebuking and defeating Senator Penrose.

The Governorship of Pennsylvania is another prize, to retain which is equally an aim of the greedy effort of the Old Order of Things, and to this end they are already waging a furious battle.

True to the only political policy with which they are familiar, the Republican machine leaders are attempting to shield either sinister purposes behind the professions of a candidate, in the person of the Superintendent of the Philadelphia Schools, Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh. They hope again to deceive the intelligent voters of the State into granting a renewal of license to plunder the Commonwealth in the interest of a few politicians and their retainers.

Despite these strenuous efforts to reconcile Dr. Brumbaugh's "regularity" and willingness to serve the Penrose machine in its extremity with his own professions of independence, the same issues are at stake and the same forces are at war in the contest for control of the State government as have joined battle over the Senatorship.

In Vance C. McCormick the opponents of machine government have put forward in the Democratic Party a type of leader rare indeed in American life, but doubly welcome and worthy. He is a politician in the best sense of that term, in that he is a student of government, familiar with its details, both in theory and practice. He has carried out sincerely and effectively in practice the ideas and ideals of an honest man. He has been a crusader for fair play, equality and been guided by practical common sense and by the fruits of ripe experience. No private interest controls or swerves him; none has ever dared to attempt it. As Mayor, publicist, newspaper owner, farmer, banker and business man, he has devoted himself consistently to the cause of good government, at immense cost of money and effort. He is opposed to machine in all parties, without evasion or equivocation, and on that ground holds an advantage over his competitor that is becoming more marked as the campaign proceeds.

On the one side of this battle, arrayed behind the respectable apologist for the evils and excesses of a corrupt machine, are all those influences that are destructive of good government from one end of Pennsylvania to the other; on the other side, behind Vance McCormick, are the forces of progress, decency and justice throughout the Commonwealth. On the one side stand the beneficiaries of a government of favoritism, graft and extravagance; on the other side stand the victims of that government. On the one side stand the reactionary seekers of privilege; on the other stand the forward-looking champions of justice and equality.

Pennsylvania's opportunity is her duty. It is also the nation's hope. The election of Palmer and McCormick will vindicate the Keystone State in the eyes of the whole country. It will give courage and spirit and faith to men of every party everywhere who are working for the better things. It will strengthen the arm of the great, patient, faithful man in the White House through all the coming months of tedious struggle for the people. It will prove once more, and at a crucial time, the youthful vigor and undiminished power of the Democratic Party, and it will disarm and defeat the enemies of progress and of popular government.

Replogle Reunion

The Replogles, the most extensively connected family in Morrison's Cove, met in their first annual reunion at Pine Hill Grove, near New Enterprise, on Saturday, August 1.

Approximately 2,000 people were on the grounds during the afternoon. The weather conditions were fine and the day thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Rhehart Z. Replogle of Johnstown. Prof. Lloyd B. Stayer of Woodbury delivered the address of welcome and was responded to by Rev. Henry S. Replogle of Scalp Level. Miss Pearl Replogle of Loysburg gave a commendable reading entitled, "The Polish Patriot." Two little girls, the Baker sisters of Salem, delighted the audience with a vocal duet. Arnold Replogle of Huntington, historian, read a short paper. Prof. William C. Hannawalt of Pomona, Cal., gave the reunion address and Daniel Benson Replogle, Esq., of Berkely, Cal., read some humorous rhymes. Elder John B. Fluke of Loysburg closed the literary program with a short talk.

A great table was then constructed in the form of an R and laden down with bountiful baskets. After enjoying the contents, the afternoon was spent in social visiting until 3 o'clock, when a permanent organization was effected by retaining Miss Clara Replogle of Roaring Spring as general secretary and Arnold Replogle as historian. The finance committee consists of L. Z. Replogle of Altoona, George W. Replogle of Roaring Spring and Daniel R. Stayer of Woodbury. The day's events closed with singing, and the benediction by Rev. Jacob R. Stayer of Woodbury.

Rev. Dr. C. Cort in Bedford

After his strenuous two days' work at the Enoch Brown Sesquicentennial Memorial August 4, 1914, and the site of Fort McCord, Dr. Cort, accompanied Dr. A. Enfield and party in his automobile across the mountains to Bedford. They attended the Union Picnic near Bedford last Thursday and had conferences with Sons of the American Revolution the following two evenings.

Sunday morning he preached for Pastor Eyer in the Reformed Church on the text, Romans 1: 16, "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, etc." He spoke of the pleasant visits made to Bedford, fifty years ago, when he came frequently to help Rev. Heckerman at communion seasons and to canvas for funds to help build Christ Reformed Church edifice in Altoona.

The Reformed congregations of Bedford, Blair and Huntingdon Counties had contributed liberally toward the erection of that mother church in the city on the mountains, but in doing so they had moulded spiritual homes for their own children, hundreds of whom had settled in Altoona and belonged to the membership of the five flourishing Reformed congregations now in Altoona, safely housed in their own sanctuaries.

In the evening Dr. Cort preached in the Lutheran Church of Bedford to a congregation composed of Lutherans, Reformed, Methodists and Presbyterians by request of the Sons of the American Revolution. He was introduced by Dr. A. Enfield of that organization and preached a sermon on Lev. 25: 10, "Ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, etc." The chancel was amply decorated with flags and bunting. The choir sang "America," etc. A large congregation listened very attentively to the 45-minute discourse of Dr. Cort as he dwelt upon the religious and patriotic duty of remembering with gratitude the days of old.

It was fitting that he should respond to the request of the Sons of the American Revolution to create an active interest in behalf of Sesquicentennial Memorial services in honor of Henry Bouquet at Bedford.

His great, great grandfather, Andrew Byerly, after baking bread for General Braddock and his ill-fated army in 1755 at Fort Cumberland, had served the British garrison in the same capacity in Fort Bedford in 1758.

His great grandfather, Jacob Byerly, was born in Fort Bedford in 1760 and was a soldier of the Revolution. He enlisted in the 13th Virginia, under Colonel John Gibson, at Fort Pitt and rendered arduous service on the western frontier during the Revolution. In one campaign up the Allegheny River and its branches he had a fierce encounter with a Seneca chief whom he managed to kill after a desperate struggle near Punxsutawney.

Colonel Gibson was the man who translated the speech of Logan, the Mingo chief, for Lord Dunmore, which Jefferson afterwards published as a splendid specimen of untutored eloquence.

"I appeal to any white man to say whether he ever entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him no meat, etc."

Jacob Byerly, who fled about thirty miles through the wilderness from Bushy Run to Fort Ligonier in 1763, when three years old with his mother, during the Pontiac War, lived to be 99 years old and is buried beneath a military monument at Brash Creek Graveyard, near Manor Station, Pa. Drs. Enfield and Daniels and Messrs. Henry Heckerman and William Beam visited that spot last summer at the time of the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Colonel Bouquet's great victory over the Eastern Confederates of Pontiac at Bushy Run August 6, 1764.

Mr. Heckerman took a picture of the rest of the party standing around the monument. They then proceeded a mile further west, along the old Pittsburgh turnpike, to the site of Fort Waltham where Mrs. Byerly and Mrs. Harmon conducted a Sunday School for families cooped up during the Revolution to escape marauding bands of Indian savages.

Major Andrew Byerly, a son of Jacob, commanded two Westmoreland companies in the War of 1812-14, that guarded Commodore Perry's fleet while being built at Erie. Pa. Two of his sons and a son-in-law, grandfather of Dr. Cort, served under General Harrison during the same war.

September 5, 1764, Colonel Bouquet arrived at Fort Bedford on his very successful campaign that put an end to the dreadful Pontiac War. Captain Lewis Ourry, in command of Fort Bedford, acted as Adjutant General in that campaign and had charge of several hundred captives brought back to their Pennsylvania and Virginia homes, 150 years ago, after the peace treaty in central Ohio.

Rev. Conrad Bucher, afterwards pioneer missionary to Reformed congregations at Forts Bedford, Ligonier and Pitt, held a similar position in that campaign. (See Harbaugh's History.)

The 150th anniversary of the beginnings of Reformed Church mission work in Western Pennsylvania ought to be commemorated this fall by Pittsburgh Synod.

An exceedingly interesting and instructive celebration of the Colonel Bouquet Sesquicentennial might be arranged by public spirited citizens of Bedford. A tableaux or pageant, representing the picturesque costumes of the different bodies of troops would be very attractive. The Royal American (German-Swiss) recruited from Protestant emigrants, mainly in Pennsylvania and Maryland, with their scarlet uniforms, the Pennsylvania and Virginia Provincial soldiers, arrayed in their hunting garb, and the Scotch Highlanders, with their kilts and plaids, would, as Parkman states, make one of the most picturesque military displays ever seen in America.

The large flag, made of brocade silk, seen and described by Dr. Cort twenty-nine years ago, which floated over Fort Bedford during Bouquet's career from 1758 to 1765, is in charge of a former resident of Bedford County, residing in Nebraska, who is expected to lend it for such a memorial occasion.

Then Lieutenant General Hutton of the British army, Colonel Commandant of the King's Royal Rifle

Corps, the historical continuation of Bouquet's Royal Americans of 150 years ago, has written Dr. Cort that representatives of that famous organization would like to take part in any celebration in honor of Colonel Bouquet and the troops that he commanded in Pennsylvania 150 years ago. They would have been present at the Bushy Run celebration August 6, 1913, had the local committee carried out, as they promised, the arrangements previously made by Dr. Cort with Ambassador Bryce and Lt. Col. Gage in regard to official invitations, etc.

The United States Government has shown a willingness to cooperate in such memorial services by appointing officers of equal rank with those coming from Great Britain.

Bedford has historic resources in connection with the lion hearted General Forbes, who, on a litter borne through the wilderness, commanded an expedition that retrieved the terrible disasters of the Braddock campaign of 1755; yea of Col. Bouquet, Burd and Washington, Capt. Ourry, etc., that, properly brought to light, will make this old town a genuine historic shrine. A shrine full of educational inspiration to coming generations and of vast material benefit to the community.

"A shrine to code nor creed confined, A Delphian vale, a Palestine, A Mecca of the mind."

It will be a lasting honor if the Sons of the American Revolution can secure the cooperation of enough public spirited citizens to make the proposed Bouquet Sesquicentennial a grand success. Otherwise it will involve a large measure of reproach, if such a golden opportunity is allowed to pass away without improvement. Will the old town show itself equal to the occasion?

New Enterprise

August 11—On Wednesday of last week Harry Furry, son of Lee Furry, had a miraculous escape from being killed. He was driving four horses in the binder cutting oats, close to the State Road. An automobile came by at a rapid speed and frightened the team which started to run. The saddle horse on which Mr. Furry was riding fell and threw him in front of the knives, but, fortunately, the piston rod broke which stopped the knives, but one of the guards penetrated his cheek and lacerated his tongue. His head and face were otherwise badly cut and bruised, and a bone in his shoulder was fractured as the guards and platform passed over his body. He was taken to New Enterprise and treated temporarily by Dr. McKenna, after which he was taken to the Altoona Hospital, where he was examined by the X-rays which disclosed the fractured bone. Reports from the hospital give hopes for his rapid recovery unless blood poisoning sets in.

Prof. H. K. Ober, Vice President of Elizabethtown College, called at the home of A. S. Replogle and family on Friday. He was on his way home from Elgin, Ill., where he attended a meeting of the General Sunday School Board of the Church of the Brethren.

GRANGERS' PICNIC

Will be Held at Osterburg Next Week, August 18-22.

The 29th Annual Grangers' Picnic will be held in Oster's Grove at Osterburg August 18 to 22 and it promises to be the largest gathering in its history.

Interesting programs have been arranged for each day, and evening. Addresses will be made each day by able speakers. Wednesday, the 19th, will be Democratic day, and the issues of the campaign will be discussed by former State Treasurer Hon. William H. Berry; Hon. W. T. Creasy, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, who is familiarly known all over this State as "Farmer Creasy," and Congressman W. W. Bailey or his personal representative. Thursday will be Republican day and addresses will be made by Hon. J. W. Jones of Indiana and Hon. Thomas S. Crago of Waynesburg, candidate for Congressman at Large, and possibly others. Friday will be Progressive day when addresses will be delivered by Hon. William Draper Lewis, candidate for Governor, and Hon. Gifford Pinchot, Colonel Roosevelt's right hand man, candidate for U. S. Senator on the Washington party ticket. The several State committees have assured the management of the picnic that there will be no disappointment but that these speakers will be there as scheduled. Every voter and taxpayer should hear the issues of this present campaign discussed by the different parties and know what each party stands for.

The Jack Kline Carnival Company of New York will put on a fine lot of good shows: Dog, Pony and Monkey Circus, Oriental Show, Snake Show, Musical Comedy, Athletic Show, Plantation Show and Vaudeville Show. These are all strictly moral shows.

There will be a two days' inter-county shooting tournament on Thursday and Friday, which is under the auspices of the Central Pennsylvania Trap Shooters' League and many expert marksmen will be present.

Baseball games daily. Dancing in the dance pavilion during the day and evenings. There will be first-class free evening entertainments every night. Tuesday evening the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind will give an illustrated lecture which will be a grand treat for all. Wednesday and Thursday evenings Civil Engineer A. W. Wyndham of New York will lecture on the Panama Canal. The lecture will be illustrated by several hundred colored stereopticon views. Mr. Wyndham was one of the engineers who had charge of the building of the Panama Canal for years and has also traveled all over the world and is a noted lecturer of fame. These lectures will be the most interesting ever given here. Friday evening there will be moving pictures, etc. There will be an entire change of program each night and a rare treat is in store for all who go to see and hear.

This great gathering is becoming more popular every year and the attendance will undoubtedly be larger this year than ever before. The P. R. R. and H. & B. T. R. R. will sell special excursion tickets to Osterburg and return good to return until Saturday, August 22. Every comfort and convenience possible will be provided for the public by the management of the picnic.

What a wonderful piece of mechanism is the human body. While everything works in harmony, what an amount of work it can do for itself and for others. But let one of its organs get out of order, then immediately the nerves will send pain all through the body and the hands that helped others must now have aid. The food that tasted like a feast now is tasteless; the pulse become high and fever heat blisters the lips. Then there must be rest until the diseased organ can mend. This is what Gideon went through since July 25. He received six letters from old friends and more than 30 persons called to see him.
